Thinking Out Loud

(By H. M. L.)

"Rugged" individualism has come to have a sinister meaning. Capt. Kidd according to the common interpretation of the adjective "rugged," was a fair sample of this kind of individualism. Chester Rowell discussing dictators in his Chronicle column, calls to mind forcibly the similarity between this country's great accumulators of wealth and some of the dictators that are now troubling Europe.

Mussolini is a rugged individualist, but not nearly so smart as John D. Rockefeller when that nonegenerian was forty years younger. Hitler is another, and not one whit more brutal than Carnegie in those days when he was on the make. Of course the fields of activity are very different. Our individualists were bent upon accumulating their "pile." The dictators are intent on lifting their respective nations to places of power on earth. Our individualists were kept somewhat in bounds by others nearly as brainy and unscruplous as they. The European dictators tolerate no other rugged individualism than their own. They are solitary giants on a self-made plane of grandeur.

But the methods of American piratical captains of industry, and the dictators are really not dissimular. One recalls the bloody strikes organized labor staged in revolt against American industrial dictators. Pat Calhoun enlisting a small army of gun men from Chicago to break the strike of the streetcar motormen and conductors in San Francisco. All dictators seek to maintain themselves and their institutions by force. No rugged individualist in this country has ever attempted to seize the government, but anyone sixty years old will remember that Mark Hanna was the government for four years.

And so—what? Merely that we can be thankful our dictators have devoted themselves to piling up millions of dollars instead of millions of votes. One conclusion is inevitable. The great men of this country, since the time of Lincoln at any rate, have not been the presidents. Our great men have been steel masters, manufacturers, merchants, railroad builders, scientists and lawyers. Few of these great men have been interested in government save as it touched their individual activities. In most cases their reaction to government was entirely selfish. Witness the huge importation of foreign labor to work in the steel mills, on railroad building, in textile mills, and a hundred other activties that enriched a few and pauperized many. Witness the tariff manipulations. Witness Tea Pot Dome.

And what is true of the "big fellas" is largely true of the mass. Comparatively few are really interested in government, no matter what their walk in life. Nearly half the people fail to vote except in presidential elections, and then only about two-thirds. Thus democracy is weakened.

The time may soon arrive when from out the ranks of these men who have devoted themselves selfishly to building fortunes and places of power in their chosen field, will come one who will work faithfully and intelligently for his country. The time may soon be here when our ablest men, leaders in other fields, will not shun politics, and will aspire to serve their country as a business executive in the White House. For it will require the best business brains this country can produce to clean house. The wastes of the Roosevelt administration must some how be stopped. The great army employed in his alphabetical reforms must somehow be returned to productive and tax paying occupations. After the four year spending orgy the country must again learn to save and conserve. It will need a business administrator to lead the people toward this goal.

DOG OWNERS WARNED

Residents of West Spring street in Nevada City are warned to keep valuable dogs chained or locked up for a time as several have been poisoned in the last few weeks. The last two to go were a little bull dog and big collie. The officers have been notified and a careful watch is being kept to pick up the poisoner.

Mr. George Williams, of Ellensberg, Washington, arrived Friday for a visit with his sister, Mrs. A. C. Fouyer of this city.

TRANSAMERICA'S WIDE SERVICE IS SHOWN IN FILM

Transamerica Corporation, largest financial institution of the West, will be shown to the public of Nevada City in all of its service functions of banking, insurance, real estate, an agricultdural finance on Wednesday, September 18 at 6:30 p. m. at the Broadway Theatre.

The showing is in the form of a complete talking picture bringing out in detail all of the means by which Transamerica serves the territory in which its subsidiaries operate.

"The motion picture is particularly significant," said John W. Grant, President, "because it is the first time that a financial institution has employed motion picture and sound equipment as a means of demonstrating its operations and setting forth its aims and purposes to the public.

"The subject of banking is of growing public interest, and we believe that the people of Nevada City will be interested to learn from our picture how the largest bank in the West performs its services, and of the part that it plays in the development of the state as a whole.

"The picture shows some interesting sidelights on what a financial institution is and does. For example, the motion picture industry of Hollywood is one of the features of the production. The film 'Transamerica,' however, covers more territory than the field of banking. It is, in fact, a motion picture and sound portrait of the financial pattern of California and the West."

HOMES BEING ERECTED ON BANNER MT. ROAD

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meyers have purchased acreage southeast of Nevada City and a foundation is being laid for a rustic house with log exterior with a chimney of field rock. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wodell of Nevada City have purchased ground nearby and work has started on a small home.

Mr. Fiske, in charge of the orchard, has a crew of nine working in the packing plant on the ranch, on Jonathans and King Davids. There are several other varieties of apples among them being the Winesap, Delicious, and White Pearmain.

The aim of the Loma Rica ranch management is to sell as many of these apples locally as possible and they are meeting with a good demand.

Sutter's Fort

The old grey fort, its rugged past forgetting,
Holds strange communion now with trees and flowers;
And there are placid pools where water lilies
Bloom in the hush of moonlight silvered hours.
The velvet lawns are dappled light and shadow,
Smooth graveled paths lead to the gate,
And from the tower, in rippling notes and tender,
A nesting bird calls softly to its mate.
Peace claims and holds the ancient fortress,
Dark clinging vines hide every scar;
The idle cannon at the gateway
Reflects the golden image of a star.
But when the moon pursues her journey
Behind low lying clouds that rim the west,
The geni of the fort glides through the shadows
And slumbering phantoms waken from their rest.
Then from the past they filch a virile hour
That kept no trysts with vines and trees and flowers,
A stage coach clatters over rutted streets,
Night broods above the menace of the towers.
From smiling bay, from moutain claim and cabin,
Coming and going as of yore,
Swart, bearded men with eyes alert and eager,
Enter again the sturdy rough hewn door,
Rude shouts of laughter break the silence,
The strident songs and oaths of men,
With tales of futile toil or tasks rewarded,
Are heard between the drinks in Slater's den.
The moments fly and soon on noisy revel
The shadow of the present starkly falls,
The phantoms fade and voices sink to silence,
Beauty and grace retake the time scarred walls.
Gone are the visions of a deathless story,
Cool [illegible] vines embrace the tower,
[illegible] when all the land lay dreaming,
[illegible] for one vivid hour.

A. MERRIAM CONNER.

BOY HURT WHEN TREE IS FELLED

Timbermen in felling a tree in the You Bet district Saturday gave warning as the tree was about to fall and twelve-year-old T. A. Wood, Jr., thought he ran to safety. He was struck by branches and knocked to the ground with such force his peivic bone was fractured. The boy was brought to the county hospital at Nevada City where Dr. A. H. Tickel took care of the injury.

HEARING OF STUDENTS TESTED BY AUDIOPHONE

Students of the Nevada City high school are having their ears tested with the use of the "audiphone," an instrument which enables the examiner to lean the exact hearing ability of those examined. The County Health Nurse, Miss Heffelfinger, has assumed charge of this activity and will continue with the examinations at the grammar school when all of the high school students have been tested.

Such tests are of a distinct advantage to the students since many are suffering from poor hearing who have not realized it previously. Results of the examinations will be filed and will enable instructors to recognize the individual hearing disabilities of the members of their classes.

During the last few days attendance dwindled to approximately 10 or 12 and the park commission considered that with so small an attendance, keeping it open was no longer warranted.

The commission reports that total receipts for the season amounted to $379.78. Of this amount the Women's Civic club contributed $125.50, the water pageant yielded $80, rental of the candy booth $40, and admission charges, towels, and the lockers brought in $134.28. Expenses including the purchase of a vacuum mud sweeper for the pool amounted to $284.36. The commission will close the season with approximately $100 in its treasury.

SENIORS HOLD DELAYED JUNIOR CLASS PICNIC

Friday the thirteenth, according to the Senior Class of Nevada City high school, is anything but unlucky. The members of this class chose just that day for their belated Junior picnic, and were allowed to "skip" the last two periods of school in order to catch up on the event which they missed during their junior year.

The class, with the aid of their advisor, Miss Esther Tremaine, enjoyed several hours of swimming, playing games, and eating tasty refreshments beneath the tall pines of Lake Olympia. Bill Polkinghorn, class president, had able committees working in order to have a well organized group picnic.

The Jam Is Breaking Up

(Contributed)

The log-jam is breaking.

On every hand evidence is piling up that building, renewing, repairing and replacing so long delayed during the depression is at least beginning to move.

California is leading the parade of states in construction with a gain of more than 100 percent over last year. People are erecting new homes, or getting that leaky plumbing replaced, or no longer putting off that long-needed re-shingling job.

On a larger scale, these things are happening too in the heavy industries. Even in the one big industry in which renewing has not yet materialized—the railroads — there is strong promise. The magazine "Railroad Age" the other day said.

"The dearth of equipment buying, even to maintain replacements in a plant used to little more than half its normal intensity, has been so prolinged that a revival in buying cannot be much longer delayed. The fact that financing can be arranged on such favorable terms should hasten the 'break' which sooner or later must come if the railroad industry is not to become a museum."

What a flood of factory jobs and increased payrolls will follow this 'break' becomes apparent when we realize that 10,582 locomotives out of the 46,078 on Class 1 railroads are in need of repair, and that fully 22 percent of the 1,842,732 freight cars are over twenty years of age.

So it is among all the big industries. Replacement must be made.

BEHAVIOR OF CHILDREN RARELY PROVES PROBLEM

BERKELEY, Sept. ! —The study into the factors contributing to personality and behavior developments in normal children is to be continued at the Institute of Child Welfare of the University of California, through a grant given by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation to Dr. Jean Walker Macfarlane. The project is known as the Child Guidance Research Study, and has brought about many interesting developments. arise.

Many traits in normal children which have concerned both parents and mental hygienists, are merely due to the effort being made by the child to adjust himself to his complex environment, Dr. Macfarlane has found. So many normal children have these traits that they must be considered as characteristic and normal attempts at adjustment to surroundings and relationships. Many examples of so-called problem behavior have been found for this group to be merely transitory attempts at solving certain situations that may

Tht study was made possible by the effective cooperation of some 250 families, who permitted their children to be made subjects of the study. Whether the study will act to cut down the numbers of the so-called "problem" children is another possible development.

The records of the children in the study have been kept from birth. They are now of school age. The effects of security or insecurity in family relationships, finances and health have been closely investigated.

INFORMATION ON AUTO OWNERS NOW RESTRICTED

SACRAMENTO, Sept. [illegible]—Labeling it "unfair to the public" and "vicious in its possibilities," Ray Ingels, new director of state department of motor vehicles, has called an immediate halt to the practice of freely giving out telephone information on vehicle registration numbers.

"Originally designed as a public information service to assist law enforcement agencies, the system has been abused to the extent that California's citizens are suffering from unfair activities of gossips, busybodies, nuisance solicitors and racketeers," said Director Ingels in informing Governor Frank F. Merriam of his order to protect the public.

"Department of motor vehicles did not plan its service to advise names and addresses of owners of vehicles for the purpose of giving inquisitive persons opportunities to carry on flirtations. Neither does the department desire to be the medium of innocently furnishing information that might be used for blackmail and persecution of automobile owners. But this is what is happening daily when John Doe telephones a department office to ascertain the name and address and financial obligations of the driver of automobile number 95U8005.

"When a system of information is abused and it offers such vicious possibilities, it is time to call a halt in the interests of the people who pay for it"

While Director Ingels was emphatic in his order against information being given out on registration numbers, he made it clear that law enforcement agencies would continue to be assisted by the records of the department.

"In fact," said Ingels, "the volume of telephone calls has been so great under demands from information seekers that police and sheriffs have been handicapped in obtaining service from our various state offices.

THERE is not one solitary moment of your time taken to keep fires going when you have gas heating in your home. A turn of a key or a touch of your finger on a thermostat and you command clean, constant, lively heat, to brighten cold gray days hour after hour without further attention.
More than that, too, your wall paper, rugs, woodwork and furnishings stay fresh and new-looking longer. That means less constant cleaning and dusting because there is no furnace or stove dirt and dust to clean up at any time in a gas heated home.
Perhaps you know all this but you have guessed gas heating costs too much. Don't guess. Come in and get the facts—all the facts about the economy of gas heating. Then you will decide you can afford to heat your home this modern way. And after you have used gas heating you'll find that gas heating is your pocketbook's best friend. Come in and let us show you how little money pays for the equipment you need on our easy purchase plan.
